

WEDNESDAY 13
Un-Alive from Pol'and'Rock 2025
Release: 25.09.2026

The Duke of Spook WEDNESDAY 13 is Un-Alive Again!

It was a hot day in the Polish summer, over 750,000 fans had crammed their way into the Czaplinek-Broczyño Airfield for the 2025 Pol'and'Rock Festival, a storied tradition for over 30 years. The Duke of Spook WEDNESDAY 13, hot off his smash hit album Mid Death Crisis (lauded by Metal Hammer, Loudwire, Blabbermouth, and more), took the stage and proceeded to decimate onlookers with a triumphant hit parade, commanding the crowd with excitement and awe. Thankfully, for us all, they had the soundboard tapped, and now that explosive performance will live on forever as Un-Alive from Pol'and'Rock 2025, dropping September 25, 2026 via Napalm Records.

A career spanning set of both WEDNESDAY 13 and Murderdolls hits, the band journeys through Mr. Motherfucker's extensive catalogue. With Murderdolls classics like "Summertime Suicide" and "197666", Weds takes us from the beginning through his solo catalog, featuring Transylvania 90210's "Look What The Bats Dragged In" and "Bad Things", The Dixie Dead's "Too Fast For Blood", Horrifier's "Good Day To Be A Bad Guy", and a plethora of bangers from Mid Death Crisis including "In Misery", "When The Devil Commands", and "Rotting Away". A bloody good time from beginning to end, this album is meant to be heard with the windows down, your accelerator through the floor, and bats on the moonlit horizon.
